Considerations for State Obesity Policy

By Jennifer Horne [1]
Monday, September 30, 2013 at 09:48 AM
The United States has a “growing” problem—an ongoing obesity crisis in both the young and old. This session offered a unique multidisciplinary approach to the problems. Panelists explored elements of the policymaking process that led to obesity programs in various states. Speakers discussed educational reforms, transportation developments, land use changes and food industry initiatives.

State Approaches to Obesity Reduction [2]
September 19, 2013
The United States has a “growing” problem—an ongoing obesity crisis in both the young and old. This session offered a unique multidisciplinary approach to the problems. Panelists explored elements of the policymaking process that led to obesity programs in various states. Speakers discussed educational reforms, transportation developments, land use changes and food industry initiatives.

Presentation by Scott Kahan, M.D., M.P.H., Director, STOP Obesity Alliance

Considerations for State Obesity Policy [3]

Scott Kahan, M.D., M.P.H.
Scott Kahan, M.D., M.P.H. serves as the Director of the STOP Obesity Alliance, providing day-to-day coordination, counsel and oversight for the Alliance's ongoing research, writing and initiatives. Dr. Kahan is a physician trained in both clinical medicine and public health. He is board-certified in Preventive Medicine, and his clinical practice specializes in weight management and obesity medicine. He serves as Director of the National Center for Weight and Wellness. In addition to his clinical practice, Dr. Kahan works as a public health physician specializing in obesity. He has been involved in numerous national and local initiatives pertaining to obesity, nutrition, and chronic disease prevention, and he has worked with Federal, state, and local governments, the National Institutes of Health, and several health advocacy groups.

Tags:
Policy Area [5]› Health [6]› Prevention and Public Health [7]› Obesity [8]
Content Type [9]› Meetings [10]› Content Type [9]› Multimedia [11]