

Emily Goff
Policy Analyst, Transportation and Infrastructure
Thomas A. Roe Institute for Economic Policy Studies

Emily Goff advances conservative solutions to transportation and infrastructure challenges as a policy analyst in the Thomas A. Roe Institute for Economic Policy Studies at The Heritage Foundation. Goff's research and writing concentrates on ways to reduce and reorient the federal role in transportation policy in favor of increased state and local control over their transportation priorities. Goff writes about privatization, competitive contracting and phasing out federal transportation programs that can more effectively be done by the states or in the private sector.

Goff's work and commentary have been cited by or appeared on Bloomberg Businessweek, Foxnews.com, the Orange County Register, The Atlantic and The Washington Examiner.

Goff earned bachelor's degrees in political science and Spanish from the University of Georgia.
