Patrick Murray
Senior associate, The Pew Charitable Trusts

Murray contributes to The Pew Charitable Trusts’ work on state budget policy, which helps states design and adopt evidence-based policies to better manage economic and revenue volatility. Murray conducts research with the team on a range of budget topics at the state level, including rainy day funds, capital budgeting, earmarks and sovereign wealth funds. He received a Master of Public Policy degree from Georgetown University, with a focus on analyzing the impact of state policies related to controlled substances.
