

Rohit T. Aggarwala

Principal, Bloomberg Associates

Rohit T. “Rit” Aggarwala leads the sustainability practice at Bloomberg Associates, a philanthropic consulting firm that serves city governments. He also advises former New York City Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg in his role as UN special envoy for cities and climate change and is a professor of international and public affairs at Columbia University.

In these capacities, Aggarwala has served as special adviser to the chairman of the C40 Cities Climate Leadership Group, developed the environmental program at Bloomberg Philanthropies and has led New York City’s Office of Long-Term Planning and Sustainability, which created and implemented PlaNYC: A Greener, Greater New York.

Aggarwala holds a bachelor’s degree, a Master of Business Administration and a doctorate from Columbia University. He also earned Master of Arts degree from Queen’s University in Ontario.