

Alison Premo Black

Senior vice president for policy and chief economist,
American Road & Transportation Builders Association
Director, Transportation Investment Advocacy Center

Black joined the American Road & Transportation Builders Association, or ARTBA, in August 2000. In addition to serving as senior vice president and chief economist for ARTBA, she is also deputy managing director of the Contractors Division and manages the Transportation Investment Advocacy Center program. Black manages ARTBA's economics staff and is responsible for more than 70 studies examining national and state transportation funding and investment patterns, including the association's landmark economic profile of the transportation construction industry, state bridge condition profiles and annual modal forecast. She also oversees ARTBA's contractor chapter relations and membership development activities. Black completed a doctorate in economics at The George Washington University and holds an master's degree in international economics and Latin American studies from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.