

What's Where in This Volume

THIS book can be of full value to you, only if you know what it contains. Therefore, we ask that you run your eye over the following brief table of contents.

Part 1.

Intergovernmental Cooperation

1. p. 1 to p. 72—An Introduction. A History. An organization.
2. p. 73 to p. 121—Reports on work in the field of intergovernmental cooperation during 1935-1937.
3. p. 122 to p. 145—Organizations in the field of government.

Part 2.

A Handbook of the States

1. p. 155 to p. 217—Rosters of the chief elective officers. Forty rosters, each devoted to one subject such as agriculture, conservation and taxation, giving the name of the chief official in each state.
2. p. 221 to p. 283—A roster of the legislators. Standing Committees in each state. And comparative information about each legislature.
3. p. 287 to p. 393—48 sections of two pages each, devoted to the 48 states, preceded by tables of comparative material concerning the states.

After you have memorized the preceding synopsis, you will really "reduce this book to your possession" by reading the more detailed table of contents in the following pages—after which you will be well prepared for spending ten minutes thumbing through all of this volume.

The Council of State Governments hopes that you will enjoy it; the Council knows that it can be useful to you.
