Facts & Figures

Federal Domestic Spending to States and Individuals

- ▶ Federal domestic spending for the East hit $717 billion in fiscal year 2010, equal to $11,568 per person.<sup>2</sup>
- ▶ The East received the highest level of per capita expenditures of the four regions, slightly more than the South, which came in at $10,636 per person. The Midwest received the smallest amount per capita, $9,146.
- ▶ In 2010, per capita federal spending regionally ranged from a low of $8,610 in New Hampshire and $8,994 in Delaware to a high of $15,662 in Connecticut and $16,673 in Maryland.
- ▶ In total dollars, Vermont ($7.4 billion) and Delaware ($8.1 billion) received the fewest dollars, while Pennsylvania ($146 billion) and New York ($202 billion) received the most.

Where the Money Goes

- ▶ The primary categories for federal domestic spending in the East were direct payments for individuals for retirement and disability (26 percent), other direct payments (29 percent), expenditures or obligations for grants (23 percent), salaries and wages (8 percent), and procurement contracts (14 percent).

Categories of Federal Domestic Spending 2012

Direct Payments to Individuals for Retirement and Disability

- ▶ In the East, the second largest component of federal domestic spending is direct payments to individuals for retirement and disability. Twenty-six percent ($187 billion) of federal funding to the East fell into this category. More than three-fourths (85 percent) of this category consists of Social Security payments ($159 billion). Federal retirement and disability benefits make up 10 percent ($18.8 billion), and veterans' benefits make up 3 percent ($5.5 billion).

- ▶ On a per capita basis, New York ($2,777) and Massachusetts ($2,812) received the smallest payments in this category, while Pennsylvania ($3,421) and Maine ($3,683) received the largest.

Other Direct Payments to Individuals

- ▶ Other direct payment categories made up 29 percent ($205 billion) of spending in the East, a majority of which (69 percent) were Medicare benefits ($142 billion). Other big areas of this category included unemployment benefits ($18.2 billion), Supplemental Nutritional Assistance Program ($12 billion) and student financial assistance ($9.7 billion).
- ▶ On a per capita basis, New Hampshire ($1,827) and Delaware ($2,110) received the smallest payments in this category, while Maryland ($3,661) and Connecticut ($6,623) received the largest.

Grants

- ▶ Twenty-three percent of federal funding ($167 billion) came in the form of grants to state agencies in the East, two-thirds of which ($110 billion) went to state departments of health and human services, which in turn administer state Medicaid programs. The departments of transportation ($12.7 billion) and education ($13.5 billion) also took up a large chunk of this category.
- ▶ On a per capita basis, New Hampshire ($1,756) and New Jersey ($1,758) received the smallest payments in this category, while Massachusetts ($3,414) and Vermont ($3,804) received the largest.

Procurement Contracts

- ▶ Expenditures on procurement contracts made up 14 percent of federal domestic spending in the East, or $103 billion, which includes contracts awarded by the departments of Defense, Education, Agriculture, Energy, and Health and Human Services, among others.
- ▶ On a per capita basis, Delaware ($404) and New York ($716) received the smallest payments in this category, while Connecticut ($3,346) and Maryland ($4,594) received the largest.

Salaries and Wages

- ▶ Salaries and wages for federal employees made up about 8 percent of spending in the East, or $54.2 billion. Spending in this category includes Department of Defense, federal civilian and U.S. Postal Service payrolls.
- ▶ On a per capita basis, Connecticut ($532) and New Jersey ($634) received the smallest payments in this category, while Vermont ($1,157) and Maryland ($2,605) received the largest.

RESOURCES

<sup>2</sup>Per capita calculations are based on 2010 Census population figures. Regional per capita figures are calculated by adding the total expenditures for the states within that region and dividing by the total regional population.

Data are rounded to millions of dollars and individual state totals may not add up to national totals due to rounding. National totals include all state territories and D.C., including those not listed here (No. Mariana Islands, Palau, American Samoa, Fed. States of Micronesia, Guam, Marshall Islands and the U.S. Virgin Islands). Does not include data on contingent liabilities (loans and insurance).
